THE CHANGELESS PLAYS.

I've wandered to the theater, I've been to see the show; I've listened to the same old jokes we heard long years ago. The villain died the same old way—his death was hard and slow—The last act saw his finish, Tom, like twenty years ago!

The heroine, she suffered, Tom; you should have heard her weep; Her hair was golden in its hue, for peroxide is cheap. She found the missing will, though, Tom; she always did, you know, When we went to the theater some twenty years ago.

The jokes were just the same ones, Tom, about the man-in-law. Likewise the goat, the stovepipe and the female suffrage law. And, yes, they sprang the one about the good old baldhead row; I sounded as it used to, Tom, some twenty years ago.

The hero struts about the stage and hoarsely whispers, "Ah, I see it all!" And then the crafty villain mutters "Bah!" The play is just the same, dear Tom; the plot is thickened so. It looks the same as when we went some twenty years ago.

The soubrette is the same, old boy; she has the same old wink. Her cheeks are just as radiant; they have the same soft pink. She's billed as Little Tottie now, and, say, she doesn't show Her age as much as when she played some twenty years ago.

The songs are full of "mother, dears," the star takes all the stage. The jokes and other dialogue show very little age. But youngest of the lot, dear Tom, the soubrette's cheeks still glow As pinkly as they used to do some twenty years ago.

Financial Dealings Of Dugway's Boy

He Tried Hard to Make Money, but Always Failed.

Dugway was out, but was expected back shortly, and Vance undertook to entertain the visitor. He was in a confidential mood.

"I've been tryin to make some money again," he said.

"So?" said the visitor. "But that's nothing new, is it?"

"Well, I don't know," replied the boy, curling himself comfortably among the pillows on the lounge. "I s'pose I try often enough, but it looks like I ain't a money maker. Pa says I am out out for a confidence man, but I don't seem to get the best of him ever. Say, do you keep books, an do you know when you have too much money?"

"I never found out that I had too much."

"Well, pa has, an it makes him feel bad. When I go down to the office I see all kinds of money around—dollars an half dollars an quarters till you can't rest, an nobody seems to pay any attention to it, particular. I ast pa about it, an he said that he knew to a cent how much they was because he kept books an made them balance every night. I was wonderin whether he'd know the difference if I took a little of it, just what I needed. I don't like to ast pa for money."

"Why?" Vance wriggled a little and bit his handkerchief. "Well," he said at last, "he always wants to know what I want to do with it."

"Impertinent curiosity. Why don't you get him to make you a fixed allowance—so much a week?"

"I did try. I wanted him to give me a nickel a day. I don't want a whole lot of money, but I like to have some. Ted Cunningham always has money, an when he wants me to pitch to a crack or anything I have to own up that I'm broke."

"I thought I would see whether pa could tell about his money, an so when Mr. Jones was gone to lunch an pa was in the back room I put the 50 cents that you gave me that day in with the other 50 cents in the tray. I didn't like to take any out, because I didn't know but it might be so. Then ma an me went home, but we had to wait dinner for pa that night, an then he didn't come for ever so long after we was through. Ma ast him what made him so late, an he said that he had been havin the dickens own time over at the office because Mr. Jones an him couldn't make the cash balance. There was 50 cents over. He looked awful mad about it, an ma didn't say anything more about him bein too late for dinner, an I didn't like to say about me havin put the 50 cents in, because I thought he wouldn't like it. I thought the best thing I could do was to tell ma, so I told her, an she said that I had better go to pa an tell him I was sorry an how it happened. I didn't do it, but I guess she did, because pa threw down my 50 cents at the breakfast table in the mornin an told me never to let him catch me at any such monkey tricks as that again or he'd make me need skin graftin. He said that he worked four hours on account of what I'd done, an it wouldn't have been so bad if there had been 50 cents too little. I ast him why, an he said that then he could have called it a mistake an paid the 50 cents out of his own pocket. I don't see why he couldn't have given the 50 cents away to somebody an said it was a mistake, do you?"

"It looks to me like false logic," said the visitor. "Did you make up your mind to fix it for a shortage next time?"

"I don't know what you mean. I didn't do anything. I told ma I wanted to make some money, an she told me to think up some way an she would help me if she could, and so I thought I might raise some chickens, so I went to Mrs. McClellan an ast her what she would sell me a dozen chickens for."

She said that depended on what I wanted, whether it was Plymouth Rocks or Brown Leghorns or banties or what. So I said Plymouth Rocks, an she told me she would let me have a dozen of them for $25.

"I knew that I couldn't get that much money, an I thought I might just as well buy eggs an set them under a common hen."

"That was a bright idea."

"Yes," Mrs. McClellan told me it would be the best thing I could do, an then I could raise a dozen chickens an sell them for $25 myself. Ma gave me the dollar to buy the eggs an I loaned her a hen what wanted to set. It takes a hen a awful long time to hatch chickens, though. I used to go out most every mornin an raise her up to see if she had got any, an she squawked an pecked at my hand. Gee! But it was about three weeks before I got any chickens, an then there was only three of 'em. That old hen wouldn't wait for the others to hatch, an when I broke 'em open to see if there was any chickens inside of 'em I wish I had let 'em alone. I guess that old hen knew all right."

"What was the trouble?"

Vance held his snub nose expressively between his thumb and forefinger.

"I was slidin down the kitchen roof," he continued, "an I knocked a board down, an it fell on one of the chickens an squashed it dead, an the other two was both roosters. I wanted some money one time an I sold one of 'em to the lady next door for a quarter."

"That was all she'd give me for it. I told her it was a blooded Plymouth Rock, but she said she didn't mind that, just so long as it would make a good fry. I kept the other one all summer an then took it to Mrs. McClellan an ast her what she'd give me for it."

"She said that she'd trade me a pair of rabbits for it an I could make more money raisin rabbits than I could raisin chickens an the rabbits was worth $1 a pair. So I took the rabbits. One of them was named Dick an the other Lizzie. I used to like Dick the best. Ma wouldn't let me keep them up in my room, so I had to build a place for them out in the wood shed an keep them there, except when I turned them loose. They was awful cute. Lizzie used to eat dough out of my hand. She liked dough better than anything."

"Haven't you got them still?"

"No. I gave them away. I got kinder tired of tendin 'em, an they didn't have any little rabbits at all. I couldn't see how I was goin to make any money out of 'em, an when I said anything about it pa he'd laugh."

"I ast Mrs. McClellan about it, an she said that hers had had two or three litters since she sold me mine, an she couldn't see how it was. Pa said they didn't have lucky names, at least Lizzie didn't. He said she ought to have been named Willie or Pete."

"Then the rabbit business wasn't a success?"

"Nuh. I lost all I put into it except the quarter I got from the lady next door for the little rooster."

"How about your mother?"

"Oh, she was only backin me. She knew she was takin chances. I wish I had that dollar back, though. I need a dollar the worst way. Don't you know a good, easy way for a boy to get a dollar? I don't want to have to wait for it too long. I'd ast pa to give me one, only I ast him for one yesterday, an he wouldn't give it to me. I ain't goin to ast him again."—Chicago Record.

A Bit of Hoyt's Wit.

In his palmy, heartful days almost every act of Hoyt was an anecdote, and there were very many of his acts. One that will appeal particularly to theatrical people is told by an actor as follows:

"Hoyt made many friends, and some of them were real fast friends. Two of the fastest in both the affectionate and the conniving sense he took with him in the production of one of his successful comedies in connection with the business management of the piece. Now, it is true of all theatrical management that there is always rivalry between the man ahead of the show and the man back with the show as to which will be the whole thing. After these two men had been on the road with the company for several weeks a strong rivalry grew up, and the man ahead of the show filled himself on the programmes as manager and the other as agent. Of course the reduced gentlemen 'kicked,' and to settle the dispute the man who was the whole thing wired Hoyt in some anger, 'I want to know how I shall bill — on the house programmes.' Quick as a flash the answer came from Hoyt, 'Bill him as excess baggage.'—Hoyt."—Kansas City Star.

Two Constitutions.

The Prince of Wales, even from his early years, was thoroughly "dosed" in English constitutional history, says a London correspondent. When quite a boy, he was daily "ground" in this branch of education and consequently grew to dislike it most cordially. The prince, treacherous as he always was, once openly rebelled at this constant "grinding" and said to his tutor:

"I hate this study, sir! It is so dry!"

"Oh," replied the tutor, somewhat shocked, "but it is most imperative that you should know all about the constitution of the country you will one day have to rule and govern, most imperative."

"Yes, sir," smartly replied the prince. "The English constitution is important, I know. But what about my constitution?"

Warning to Other Rash Young Men.

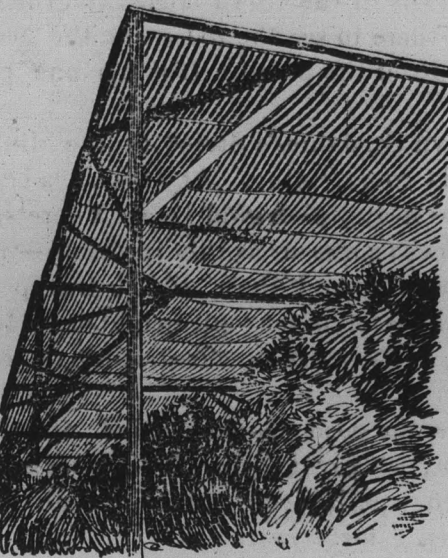

"He told her he would give all he had in the world to make her happy," said Miss Carey.

"And what did she do?"

"She married him and held him strictly to his promise."—Washington Star.

Frost Protection by Screening.

All the screening or covering devices now so much used in protecting citrus fruits against frost are in effect modified hothouses, and there is no question but that a thorough protection can be accomplished. The expense is the one objection. Screens are made of light materials—namely, canvas, muslin and light woodwork—and have been used with considerable success. At a large California ranch an elaborate structure of lath screens is in use. There is no question as to the value of the protection, but the expense is considerable, averaging perhaps $400 to the acre. This lath covering may be considered as forming a well ventilated hothouse.

One Thing and Another.

Kafir corn is grown in every county in Kansas, Secretary Cohn reporting 582,895 acres in 1899 for that state.

The quality of the California vintage this year is reported to fully equal that of the famous 1893, while the quantity is about 15,000,000 dry and 7,000,000 sweet wines.

The government of Spain has decided to construct reservoirs and irrigation canals for enlarging the agricultural area. It is estimated that the valley of the Ebro river, for example, may be so flooded as to allow the reclamation of 235,000 acres. It is found that the irrigated lands in the valleys of the Ebro and Tago yield 12 times as much fruit as the dry lands. There is sufficient available water in Spain to reclaim an immense domain.

The largest hopyards in the world are in California, along the Sacramento, Russian and Feather rivers, and the largest hopfield on earth is at Pleasanton, in Alameda county, where, according to an exchange, there are 368 acres, with more than 445,000 vines, under one wire.

One Thing and Another.

According to Professor Georgeeson grain can be matured almost anywhere in Alaska. He has also grown fax at Sitka. It was more than three feet high, matured seed and produced a fiber of excellent quality.

Experiments with macaroni wheats lead to the belief that a considerable section of this country can grow these wheats better perhaps and cheaper than anywhere in the world. The Dakotas have thus far given the best results with the spring varieties of macaroni wheat, and the establishment at no distant time of macaroni factories in St. Paul and Minneapolis is predicted.

The winter wheat yield, 76,555,443 bushels, is the greatest winter wheat crop ever grown in Kansas and probably the greatest ever recorded for any state. It exceeds the previous year's crop by 33,779,972 bushels and by $19,007,127 in value.

In the Isle of Jersey whole potatoes for seed are sprouted in trays eye end up.

Weekly Crop Bulletin.

United States Department of Agriculture, Climate and Crop Bulletin of the Weather Bureau, California Section, Coast and Bay Division, for the week ending Monday, March 11th, 1901.

Warm weather has commenced during the week, and conditions have been very favorable for all crops. Frosts have occurred in some localities, but have not caused any damage. The light showers at the close of last week softened the upper soil and were very beneficial to growing crops. Plowing and cultivating are progressing. Grain is in excellent condition, and has commenced heading in some directions. Heavy crops are expected, as the acreage is unusually large. Early pears and other deciduous fruits are in full bloom and give promise of a heavy yield. Vineyards are in good condition.

The City Trustees of Gilroy at a meeting held last Monday night raised the saloon license from $60 to $300 a year. It is claimed that the increased license will knock out eleven saloons in that town.

THE OBSERVER.

Pageantry and the British Crown.

Every morning in London, just before eleven o'clock, a company of red-coated guards, preceded by a fine band, marches up Pall Mall and turns into the road which divides Marlborough House from St. James's Palace. It makes its way to the Friars Court of the latter, and there the medieval ceremony of changing guard is gone through with. A crowd waits every day for the show. From the windows and the porch roof of the palace the friends of royalty look down upon the performance. When the two solemn lines of guards advance towards each other with the ridiculous goose-step, the Americans in the crowd laugh, and the London cockney frowns at them. He is there to see the red coats, the bear-skin hats, the gold lace, and all the rest of the pomp. It is his one peep at splendor for the day.

On the day of a levee, down St. James's Street to the dingy old palace a squadron of Life-Guards come riding. At their head are the trumpeters, they and their horses heavy with gold lace. There is nothing in the world of parade soldiers so gorgeous as this spectacle—the Life-Guards in all the insolence of beauty, and their gilded trumpeters in their velvet jockey-caps. Nine times out of ten your neighbor on the curb will whisper to you, awe-struck, "Those trumpeter trappings cost £80 apiece."

And now London has seen the good Queen buried, and Edward VII. open Parliament in true English royal style. The latter ceremony, the newspapers say, has not been equalled for splendor since Victoria and the Prince Consort performed it forty years ago.

All this color and gold, these yeamurys of the guard in the clothes of Henry VIII., these outriders, this old state coach of glass and gilt, may seem archaic and not in harmony with the hard-headed English race. But, whatever may be the cause of the survival, all of us know that the love of pageantry is not only characteristic of modern Englishmen, but of their descendants on this side of the water. Do we not all hasten to look at the passing regiment? But the Englishman, above all men, loves to be dazzled. He is also fond of the dramatic. Indeed, he has done more to encourage the melodramatic than all the other races of men. Perhaps it may be said that the melodramatic is the dramatic diluted with gin tears.

The whole nation bows down before the splendors of its royalty and its nobility. From the latter it receives something else. From royalty, baring the splendid example of the departed Queen, it gets nothing but the pageantry. The King has no power except to please, and the easiest way to please an English crowd is with red and gold and much blare of trumpets and beating of drums. Whatever there is of English royalty outside of its social and official pageantry is a tradition—a useful tradition doubtless, which, however, there would be danger of forgetting the moment the crown ceased to please the English eye for pageantry. In order to preserve that touching, unquestioning loyalty of the English for their rulers, the crown must preserve its traditions in red and gold. Disraeli, the Oriental, understood the trait, and deepened the red and burnished the gold.—Harper's Weekly.

Justice Brewer did a public service in calling attention at Yale last month to the growing frequency of lynchings, which, he said, have almost "become a habit of the American people." While willing to find some reason for the origin of the practice in the frequent delays of the law and reversals of judgment, he pointed out that we must rise to a higher plane of civilization, or peace and order and the country's good name will suffer. As a matter of fact, our reputation has already suffered the world over, and will continue to do so as long as such shocking affairs as the burning of a negro in Justice Brewer's own State of Kansas go unpunished. If the slow machinery of the law is responsible for the origin of the lynching fever, its failure to convict those who rob it of its sole prerogative of administering justice only adds fuel to the fire, and leads to the development of the lawless spirit along saloon-smashing lines. Justice Brewer is confident that, "when public sentiment is aroused so as to feel that the safety of the community demands the prosecution" of the offenders, court procedure will be altered, and lynch law will gradually disappear. But one of the functions of our courts is to help to arouse and maintain public sentiment against crime, and a few successful prosecutions of lynchers as murderers, even if slow, not only will tend to break up the practice, but will invariably create the proper public sentiment against it, for which we may otherwise wait indefinitely. Familiarity with illegal practices tends, the world over, to deaden moral objections to them, and not to create them.—The Nation.

Colonel Roosevelt, as quoted in the New York Times, expressly disclaims all bear stories and wolf stories that have been told in the newspapers in connection with his recent hunting trip. He says: "We did not see a bear or wolf on the entire trip. Aside from lynx and smaller game, our hunting was confined to mountain-lions, or panthers. I got twelve of them." He also says that no newspaper correspondent was within forty miles of where he was hunting at any time while his hunt continued. These disclaimers dispose of a number of tales to which allusion was lately made. All reports being duly winnowed, the important fact that is left is that the Vice-President elect has come back in excellent health and spirits, and very much rested by his exertions.—Harper's Weekly.

Senator John S. Enos at Rest.

The remains of the late Senator John S. Enos were interred in the family plot in Mountain Cemetery, on Monday afternoon of the 11th inst. Oil in Bennett Valley.

A party of Santa Rosans including J. P. Overton, F. P. Doyle, W. W. Gauldin, Frank P. Grace, T. J. Hutchinson and Mr. Brown of Oregon, drove out to the Peterson ranch in Bennett Valley last Sunday and inspected a splendid ledge of oil sandstone. The ledge is near the line of the old Burnham ranch. Within 100 feet of the ledge is a strong flow of gas which bursts readily when lighted. From the sandstone spoken of, it was learned from one of the aforementioned gentlemen, there is a thick seepage of oil. The prospect is considered very valuable and has attracted much attention. Experts have pronounced that it would be impossible to have better oil indications.

Mrs. F. Cleve and her daughter Miss Doris Cleve are spending a few weeks in St. Helena, Napa county, where Mrs. Cleve hopes to regain her health.

F. M. Poston and H. Donaldson of Yountville, Napa county, were in town several days the past week visiting Sonoma relatives. Mr. Poston and wife will shortly take up their residence in this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Johnson (nee Clara Cheney), after an absence of several years in San Francisco, have returned to Sonoma. Mr. Johnson will take charge of Postmaster Cheney's draying business and Mrs. Johnson will be Assistant Postmaster.

E. W. Davis, former County Superintendent of Schools of Sonoma county, has been in Santa Rosa the past week. Mr. Davis has been residing for some time past in Colfax, for the benefit of his health, which is very much improved.

Rheumatism.

Nobody knows all about it; and nothing, now known, will always cure it.

Doctors try Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, when they think it is caused by imperfect digestion of food. You can do the same.

It may or may not be caused by the failure of stomach and bowels to do their work. If it is, you will cure it; if not, you will do no harm.

The way, to cure a disease is to stop its cause, and help the body get back to its habit of health.

When Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil does that, it cures; when it don't, it don't cure. It never does harm.

The genuine has this picture on it, take no other.

If you have not tried it, send for free sample, its agreeable taste will surprise you.

BROKE HIS NECK.

Jas. Phillips of Carneros
Creek Instantly Killed.

James Phillips, a farmer residing on Carneros Creek, Napa county, about nine miles from this place, was instantly killed last Wednesday by falling from the high seat of a farm wagon and breaking his neck. The accident occurred just after he had driven through the gate leading from the Napa road into his farm. No one witnessed the accident, but deceased's wife, observing the team standing in the road without a driver, left the house and upon approaching the horses and wagon discovered her husband lying dead alongside the road. It is supposed that the unfortunate man attempted to mount the high seat of the wagon after passing through the gate, slipped and fell with the above result. Mr. Phillips, who was well-known in this valley, was a native of Ireland and aged 45 years. He leaves a widow and three small children. For many years he was an attendant at the Napa State Hospital.

Thos. S. Cooper's Illness.

Thos. S. Cooper is rapidly convalescing from his recent spell of sickness. He will remain in San Francisco for some time before returning to his home in Outlook, Washington.

Mr. Cooper's illness came about in a most peculiar manner. The day he was taken down he was feeling as well as usual. He was sitting alone in his room and was suddenly seized with nausea and sank to the floor unconscious. He lay where he fell for several hours when he regained consciousness and feebly called for help. When assistance arrived he was discovered lying helplessly on the floor and bathed in blood. A tumor in the stomach, the presence of which was not even suspected, had burst and caused an excessive hemorrhage of that organ which so weakened him that for a time his life was despaired of. The breaking of the tumor undoubtedly saved Mr. Cooper's life.

Social Event of the Season.

Twenty five of Sonoma's young people attended the reception and dance given by Miss Dora Burris, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Burris, on last Saturday evening. It proved to be a very jolly affair and was enjoyed by every one. The interior of this handsome house was prettily decorated with fruit blossoms, ferns and flowers, and Miss Burris proved a pleasant hostess. Dancing was the amusement of the first part of the evening. Then followed card playing, vocal and instrumental music. At 12 o'clock a fine supper was served in the dining room. At a reasonable hour the merry guests departed, delighted with the hospitality of the Burris' home.

Following were present: Misses Powers, Brady, San Francisco; Irma Wood, Santa Rosa; Knight, McDonnell, Burris, Walker, Young, M. Humphreys, A. Humphreys, Bates, J. Granice and Mrs. McMullen. Messrs. Levy, Fisher, Nauman, Harry Knight, Cooper, Howard Knight, W. Cleve, S. Glaister, F. Cleve, Ed. Burris, F. Burris, Rich, Thompson, Dan. Burris, J. Burris, Mr. and Mrs. David Burris, R. McDonnell, A. Adler.

Wasn't Born to be Killed
That Way.

Louis Fouts, while hauling wood from Tomas's dairy farm to this place, had a narrow escape from serious injury Tuesday. He was driving along a steep hillside on the ranch when the heavily loaded wagon gave a sudden lurch and turned completely over. Fortunately the driver was thrown clear of the wagon and struggling horses and escaped without a scratch.

A. Pinelli, after an interval of a year, has again assumed the management of the Victoria Saloon, E. Ford retiring. Mr. Pinelli has restocked the saloon with a choice selection of wines, liquors and cigars for his old patrons and the public in general.

Principal Benjamin Weed has started a class in botany in the High School.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE AT GLEN ELLEN.

Will be Held the Latter Part of Next Month.

At a meeting of the Glen Ellen Grange held last Saturday evening the proposition for holding a Farmers' Institute in that place the latter part of April was discussed, and it was unanimously decided to have the Institute. Thos. Johnson, Chas. J. Poppe and Theo. Wagner were appointed a committee of three to make the necessary arrangements. The Institute held in Glen Ellen a few years ago was a great success, being largely attended by people from all parts of the Sonoma Valley. That the one to be held in April will be equally so goes without saying as the people of our little sister town never do things by halves.

Trout Fishing.

Sonoma Creek promises great sport for local fishermen on the opening day of the season. The stream has been quite high the past few months and the fish have been running up in great shape. The small streams in the mountains are reported to have been fished out already by the Sonoma small boys, who know no open or close season. For the past three years there are small streams of which there are sixteen in the mountains north and west of town, have afforded no sport, whatever, to trout fishermen, having been fished out before the opening of the season.

Will Compete Against Crack
Wing Shots of the World.

Clarence Nauman of San Francisco, who is well-known in Sonoma, left last Tuesday for Europe, where he will compete with the crack wing shots of the world for championship honors. Mr. Nauman is a member of the San Francisco Gun Club and at present is the champion wing shot of California. While abroad he will shoot in London, Paris, Berlin and many other cities and his chances of returning home as the champion shot of the world are good.

Double Wedding.

A double wedding took place in Suscal, Napa county, last Wednesday, the contracting parties being Miss Louise Allen and Mr. Charles Larkin and Miss Elizabeth Allen and Mr. Collins Macrae. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the brides' parents in the presence of a large number of relatives and intimate friends. Two pastors officiated, Rev. Mr. Wiley of the Presbyterian Church, Napa, and Rev. Mr. McAllister, chaplain of the Mare Island Navy Yard. The brides are cousins of Mr. E. T. Allen of this valley and both are handsome and highly accomplished young women. To the strains of a wedding march Miss Louise entered the parlors leaning upon the arm of her father while Mr. E. T. Allen escorted Miss Elizabeth. After the impressive ceremony had been performed the happy couples were warmly congratulated. The twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Allen held the ends of white ribbons which formed an arch under which the bridal party passed.

A dainty wedding breakfast was partaken of after which both couples took their departure amid a shower of rice for a short honeymoon trip. The Allen residence upon this occasion was beautifully decorated with palms, ropes of smilax, pretty stands of flowers, fruit blossoms, lilies and other foliage, presenting a charming scene.

A great attraction on this auspicious occasion was the inspection of the handsome wedding presents, consisting for the most part of silverware.

Mr. and Mrs. Larkin will take up their residence in the State of Washington while Mr. and Mrs. Macrae will make their home in Vallejo.

AMONG THE HOTELS AND SUMMER RESORTS.

Many Improvements Being Made in Anticipation of an Increased Number of Visitors this Season.

The efforts of the California Northwestern Railway last season to make the Sonoma Valley an outing place for the people of San Francisco and visitors from the East during the spring and summer months was crowned with success. Last season every hotel in the valley was crowded with these visitors and many had to be turned away.

This season, however, efforts are being made to accommodate all who may come to while away a few weeks or months amid the natural beauties of the Sonoma Valley.

In Sonoma the Union Hotel has been fitted up by the new owners, Messrs. Wilde & Mullen, regardless of cost. Here the city visitor will find all the conveniences of a modern, first-class hotel.

Ciucci & Martinoni of the Toscano Hotel have a force of carpenters at work erecting an addition to their already commodious hotel, consisting of a new dining room and kitchen and six sleeping apartments. The present dining room will be converted into a parlor and sitting room. A new wine cellar is also being built in the rear of the hotel.

The Bellevue Hotel at El Verano will be enlarged immediately by the addition of twenty six bed rooms. Other improvements will also be made that will convert this hotel into one of the finest in the valley. Peter Gouillardou, the lessee, is a noted French caterer from the metropolis.

Work on a new summer resort will be commenced next week on the Dr. Lawrence place, in the northeastern part of town, recently purchased by Henry Pallicer. In addition to other rooms this resort will be provided with twenty sleeping apartments.

SONOMA VALLEY
BOARD OF TRADE.

The Sonoma Valley Board of Trade, which was organized last week, held another meeting last Thursday evening. Dr. A. E. Osborne presiding.

The naming of a Board of Managers was deferred until the next meeting. This Board will consist of five members from Sonoma and one from each of the nine school districts in this valley.

A committee, consisting of Jas. Campbell, Geo. Breitenbach, Geo. W. Reed, Benj. Weed and F. Mitchellree was appointed to draft a new constitution and by-laws.

On motion of Fred. Duhning the Secretary and Benj. Weed were appointed a committee to submit an emblematic design to be used on the organization's stationery.

The Secretary was instructed to write to the California Northwestern Railway officials in regard to improving the train service of their road in this valley.

An invitation sent to the Sonoma County Board of Trade at the last meeting elicited no response whatever.

At the regular weekly meeting to be held next Thursday evening it is expected that Hon. J. A. Filcher, Secretary of the State Board of Trade, will be present and address the meeting.

Siftings.

Peter Hein was in this place last Sunday.

Louis Green of Sonoma visited this place Sunday.

F. Chelini of Sonoma passed through here Sunday.

John McNeal visited San Francisco several days last week.

Will Cummings, our popular young station agent, visited Sonoma Tuesday.

Harry Knight spent Sunday in this place. He was in quest of the finny tribe and succeeded in landing six.

Alex. Martin of San Francisco lured eighteen of the finny tribe from the briny depths of Sonoma creek below tidewater one day this week.

Sol. Carriger and Wm. Fowler of Sonoma caught thirty-five trout in Sonoma Creek last Sunday. One of the speckled beauties tipped the scales at a pound and a-half.

Large bands of canvasbacks have been seen near this place the past two weeks. The congregating of these birds is a sure sign of an early departure for their breeding grounds in the far North.

Robt. Hall, one of Sonoma Valley's most prominent farmers, met with quite a mishap in front of our Postoffice last Monday. While setting in his cart the gray horse he was driving became scared and bolted. Mr. Hall was thrown out of the cart but fortunately escaped serious injury. The animal, finding himself free, ran nearly to Embarcadero, where he stopped on his own accord. The only damage was a broken shaft.

John Lawlor, lessee of the Schell stock farm, sold to Henry Webber of the Central Market, Sonoma, one day this week, four head of the finest steers ever seen in this valley. The salt marsh lands bordering Sonoma creek between this place and Reclamation for stock-raising purposes are the equal if not the superior of the bunch grass cattle ranges of Nevada, and the sleek steers on the Lawlor and Jones ranches prove it.

Do Bees Injure Fruit?

As a result of the question now much in evidence as to whether bees can or do injure fruit by puncturing it and then sucking the juices, the following by an Illinois fruit grower and apiarian of 33 years' experience is reproduced from American Bee Journal: "But what is the actual physiological position of the bees in regard to fruit? The honeybee has mandibles, or jaws, in the form of spoons, working vertically instead of horizontally, as in animals. These mandibles are horny and entirely devoid of teeth. They can be used only for the usual purposes of the honeybee, to mold the wax, to cut the comb, and to handle and carry out any debris. They can use them to tear the corolla of blossoms or even leaves, and they also can tear cloth by taking hold of imperceptible protruding threads and pulling them out, one after another, till a hole is made. But the hole that they make in a piece of cloth is ragged and uneven; it is torn, not cut. They have no sharp, sawlike jaws, like those of hornets, and it would be as impossible for them to bite into the smooth skin of a fruit as it would be for a man to take a bite out of a smooth wall."

Remarkable Cures of Rheumatism.

From the Vindicator, Rutherfordton, N. C.

The editor of the Vindicator has had occasion to test the efficacy of Chamberlain's Pain Balm twice with the most remarkable results in each case. First, with rheumatism in the shoulder from which he suffered excruciating pain for ten days, which was relieved with two applications of Pain Balm, rubbing the parts afflicted and realizing instant benefit and entire relief in a very short time. Second, in rheumatism in thigh joint, almost prostrating him with severe pain, which was relieved by two applications, rubbing with the liniment on retiring at night, and getting up free from pain. FOR MALARIA, CHILLS AND FEVER.

The Best Prescription Is Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic.

The Formula Is Plainly Printed on Every Bottle, So That the People May Know Just What They Are Taking.

Imitators do not advertise their formula knowing that you would not buy their medicine if you knew what it contained. Grove's contains Iron and Quinine put up in correct proportions and is in a Tasteless form. The Iron acts as a tonic while the Quinine drives the malaria out of the system. Any reliable druggist will tell you that Grove's is the Original and that all other so-called "Tasteless" chill tonics are imitations. An analysis of other chill tonics shows that Grove's is superior to all others in every respect. You are not experimenting when you take Grove's—its superiority and excellence having long been established. Grove's is the only Chill Cure sold throughout the entire malarial sections of the United States. No Cure, No Pay. Price, 50c.

Read This, Consumptives

"From the way my wife coughed for six months, I knew she had consumption. She showed it in her face, too, and her body wasted away to a mere skeleton. After she got down to the doctors couldn't do any good. I called in both Dr. T. A. Shannon and Dr. N. L. Hawson, each of whom is a first-class physician, but they had nothing that would reach the trouble in her lungs. My wife's father came to see her one day, when she got very low. He lives in Cedar Lake, Wis., while we live in Rice Lake, Wis. He said he knew what was needed, and made me get a bottle of Acker's English Remedy for Consumption. I went to Schmidt's, our local druggist, and got a bottle, and it helped her right away. She took eight soc. bottles, and they put her back on her feet and made her as sound and well as any woman in town. She has taken on flesh again, she doesn't cough, and if any one who doesn't know the facts was to be told she was so near death with consumption, he wouldn't believe it. My wife does all her housework, and at night sleeps as soundly as you please. Her stomach no longer gives her any trouble at all. Maybe you doubt what I am telling. If so, I advise you to see J. N. Schmidt, the druggist who sold me Acker's English Remedy for Consumption. He'll tell you the same thing. He says Acker's English Remedy is wonderful in all throat and lung troubles; that it is sold on a guarantee to cure, or money returned, and he never yet had a bottle come back to his store, although he has sold hundreds of them. My name is Luther Bedell, Rice Lake, Wis."

Acker's English Remedy is sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee that your money will be refunded in case of failure, 50c, 75c, and $1 a bottle in United States and Canada. In England 1s. 6d., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d.

We authorize the above guarantee. W. H. HOOKER & Co., Proprietors, New York.

HOW TO STORE CABBAGE.

A Convenient Cellar or Pit in Which It Will Store Well.

Dig a pit 12 by 32 feet and 3 1/2 feet deep, outside measure. Lay wall either of stone or brick 12 inches thick and 18 inches above ground, which makes a wall 4 1/2 feet high from bottom of pit to top of sill. For sills use 2 by 12 plank. The earth from pit should be used to grade up to top of wall outside, giving a good slope to turn water and protect wall above ground from frost. For the roof run a ridgepole 3 by 5 inches the entire length of building, flat side down, on four 4 by 4 chestnut or oak posts. These posts should be put into the ground a few inches at bottom and set on a flat stone. For the roof find it best to use good pine 1 by 12 and cap joint with 4, nailed to ridgepole and the sill, which is convenient to take off when filling the house. The heads can be tossed direct from the wagon down to the men placing them in the pit. It is also handy to clean and air in the spring. The center post to support ridgepole, as above mentioned, should be boarded up on both sides, leaving a three or four inch space between each board up to the roof, thus leaving a good air space. Also have three ventilators six inches square made of inch boards run up two feet above roof. In warm weather leave door open at end and top of ventilators, which gives perfect circulation. Of course in severe cold weather it is closed as tight as possible. At the end have one door large enough to go in either side of the pit; also covered steps, with an outside door. When severe cold weather sets in, we usually cover the roof with strong horse manure. In our 30 years' experience we spent considerable money, to say nothing about loss of thousands and thousands of heads of cabbage, experimenting. But the above described building has given entire satisfaction.

Experience has taught us that no matter how perfect the building may be if cabbage is roughly handled and not properly stored it will not keep. It should be cut off the stump, heads turned bottom side up to let water run out and head seal over where it has been cut from the stump, which requires at least five hours of sunshine. Our cabbage is trimmed as close and with as much care for storing as if it were going to market. Stump and leaves only cause decay; besides, they take up too much valuable space and cause more labor to handle crop. The size I have given you is about right for two acres of very large flat cabbage. It will hold three acres of ordinary Danish or the same of ordinary flat, concludes the grower who presents this plan in Rural New Yorker.

Popular Forcing Tomato.

Gardening illustrates an excellent underground tomato which is rapidly making place for itself in this country. A prominent gardener says he likes it better than any as a free cropping, free setting, medium sized variety and finds a ready sale for it on the New York market. The fruit is of medium size, very uniform and smooth in outline, almost round in shape, solid and very firm, color clear bright scarlet, with very deep flesh and remarkably small seed space. There are now two foreign varieties, Sutton's Best of All and Fruitmore Selected, that have made a place for themselves on this side as good forerunners.

Market Varieties of Celery.

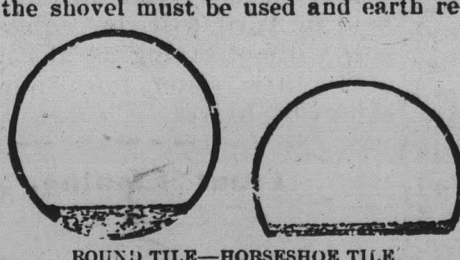

The Paris Golden is the fall celery and is mostly used until the middle of November. After that time there is a call for something better, and the Giant Pascal is the most popular celery with us until Christmas, when the call is for Boston Market. It is of the best quality, a fine keeper, and as it does not grow so tall as the Pascal it can be planted closer. Four to five feet between the rows gives plenty of room if the land is good, while six feet is not too far for the Pascal. We set very little celery before the middle of June and generally the larger part after the first of July, says a New England Homestead correspondent.

A Few Pointers.

The recent statistics of the number of deaths show that the large majority die of consumption. This disease may commence with an apparently harmless cough which can be cured instantly by Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs, which is guaranteed to cure and relieve all cases. Price 25c and 50c. For sale by all druggists.

Points About Tile and Laying It.

Tile when properly placed in a ditch do not require a covering of small stones or gravel, and they will do better work if the regular soil is used for covering. Horseshoe tile are not as good for the purpose of draining as round tile. While they would be reasonably sure to stay in place if properly laid, they are not as efficient as round tile. The reason they are not as efficient is shown in the cut. If but a small stream of water is flowing, it spreads out over the entire flat surface of the horseshoe tile, and there is not depth enough of water to cause the removal of silt or sediment which may accumulate. It is far more difficult to lay horseshoe tile and do good work than to lay round tile. If the round tile does not make a tight joint with its neighbor, it may be turned until a place is found where the joint is reasonably satisfactory. If the horseshoe tile does not fit with its neighbor, then the shovel must be used and earth removed or filled in as the occasion may require. If horseshoe tile are used, they will do better work if they are laid with the flat tile up, for then conditions as to the flow of water are produced which are more nearly like those present with the round tile. When round tile are laid, it is well to lay a piece of common tarred building paper over the joint before filling in with earth. No matter how tight the joint is made there is always a slight opening, and there is a possibility that soil may pass into the tile and obstruct the passage. After the tile are placed a small piece of building paper laid over the joint just before replacing the earth will insure against obstruction, says L. A. Clinton among some items of advice given in Country Gentleman.

MAYDOLE'S HAMMER.

(Benson's Plaster is Pain's Master.)

When Maydole was told that he made "a pretty good hammer," he said, "No, I don't make a 'pretty good hammer,' I make the best hammer that ever was made." Every carpenter who saw a Maydole hammer wanted one. It was of the best material, perfectly balanced, and the head never flew off. Hammers were divided into two classes—1st, Maydole's 2d, all the rest. Plasters are separated by the same line of cleavage; 1st, Benson's Porous Plaster; 2d, all the rest. When for rheumatic pain, cold, a cough, kidney trouble or any other disease or ailment that may be treated externally, you ask for a plaster, any honest, reputable druggist will give you a Benson's. He knows it is incomparably the best, and he assumes that you know it too. As the name of Maydole stood for hammers the name of Benson stands for plasters—the "real thing." All the medicinal potencies that are valuable in a plaster are in Benson's, Capicum, Strengthening and Belladonna plasters are out of date.

An army of physicians and druggists, and millions of the people, have written of Benson's Plasters as a remedy to be trusted. Benson's Plasters have fifty-five highest awards. Accept no substitute.

For sale by all druggists, or we will pay postage on any number ordered in the United States, on receipt of 25c each.

An Honest Medicine for La Grippe.

George W. Waitt, of South Gardiner, Me., says: "I have had the worst Cough, cold, chills and grip and have taken lots of trash of no account but profit to the vendor. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the only thing that has done any good, whatever. I have used one bottle of it and the chills, cold and grip have all left me. I congratulate the manufacturers of an honest medicine." For sale by F. Duhring.

At Bed Time

I take a pleasant herb drink, the next morning I feel bright and my complexion is better. My doctor says it acts gently on the stomach, liver and kidneys, and is a gentle laxative. It is made from herbs, and is prepared as easily as tea. It is called Lane's Medicine. All druggists sell it at 25c and 50c. Lane's family medicine moves the bowels each day. If you cannot get it send for a free sample. Address, Orator F. Woodward, Le Roy, N.Y.

A Good Cough Medicine for Children.

"I have no hesitation in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says F. P. Moran, a well-known and popular baker, of Petersburg, Va. "We have given it to our children when troubled with bad coughs, also whooping cough, and it has always given perfect satisfaction. It was recommended to me by a druggist as the best cough medicine for children as it contained no opium or other harmful drug." Sold by F. Duhring.

A Minister's Mistake.

A city minister was recently handicapped to be read from his pulpit. Accompanying it was a clipping from a newspaper bearing upon the matter. The clergyman started to read the extract and found that it began: "Take Kemp's Balsam, the best cough cure." This was hardly what he expected and, after a moment's hesitation, he turned it over, and found on the other side the matter intended for the reading.
